Receiverships are provided for under sections 175 ? 197 of the Insolvency Act. This is a remedy available to secured creditors on default of payment by the debtor. A receiver may be appointed under a debenture or a deed creating security over the Company assets or by court. A receiver?s main focus is to realise assets and manage the business of a company for the benefit of the security holder.
*An appointed receiver
should be a qualified insolvency practitioner.
